Señorita Tapir is Señor Tapir's cousin. They're part of a Tapir band! She plays the big drum! She shares a gentle soul and love for music like her cousin, Señor Tapir.

SRTA. TAPIR concentrates as she beats out a LOW SOUND on her BIG DRUM. The kids arrive, but she is too focused to notice. The kids stop in front of her and gawk.

ELINOR / OLIVE / ARI (CALLING LOUDER)
SRTA. TAPIR!

Srta. Tapir stops playing.

SRTA. TAPIR
Oh! I'm sorry I didn't hear you over my practicing.

ELINOR
We've been looking everywhere for you.

SRTA. TAPIR
For me? But why?

ARI
Your cousins need you to kick off the festival with them!

SRTA. TAPIR
Oh my! I was so busy practicing that I didn't notice the time. Thanks for finding me. It must have been difficult with all this hubbub.

ELINOR
It was at first, but it was easy once we learned that the bigger the drum, the lower the sound.

Srta. Tapir laughs and bangs out a DEEP BEAT on her drum.

SRTA. TAPIR
<CHUCKLES>, it's true! My drum does make a really low sound. In musical terms, we say it has a "low pitch." Whenever you hit a drum, the surface of it vibrates. The faster the vibration, the higher the pitch of the sound. Bigger instruments have slower vibrations, so the pitch of the sound is lower.
